He Discountenances Attacks Upon the Apostolic Delegate.

An Immense Throng at This Morning's Pontifical Mass.

The visit of Mgr. Satolli, the Apostolic Delegate and representative of the Pope in America to Archbishop Corrigan. Metropolitan of New York, was honored to-day at St. Patrick's Cathedral with solemnity and pomp which the Church always observes on such occa-

The Papal Delegate chose for the time of his visit the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary, which is one of the most important festivals of the Roman Catholic Church, as it commemorates the taking up into heaven

Services at the Cathedral began at a very early hour this morning, and five masses were said before the opening of the imposing ceremonies, which ush-ered in the Archbishop and his distinguished guest, Mgr. Satolli, for the high Pontifical mass, which began at 10.30 o'clock.

The great body of the Cathedral was filled with worshippers during all the preliminary exercises, and crowds were continually going in and coming out of the great doors at the entrance on Fifth avenue.

of the great doors at the entrance on Fifth avenue.

With the exception of a few palms and notted plants at either side of the high white altar, there were no signs of desoration in honor of the unusual occasion. The only lifterence in the vestments of the priests who took part in the ceremonies from those worn on ordinary occasions, was that they were all in white. The appearance of the altar was somewhat changed by the erection of a whitedraped those at the left, which was occupied by Archishop Corrigan during the celebration of the mass, if he through the Archishop usually occupies at the right of the altar was reserved for Mor. the work which falls to a server at a low mass, there were about sixty accelytes, who carried the mitres, the bugia, or band candle, the missal, the havabodish, the towels and the torches. The boys who waited upon the Delegate were in white cassocks; those who attended the Archbishop in scarletp ones. The music for the occasion was mater the direction of Prof. Joseph Hillsbrand, with the assistance of the Palestring Society in place of the regular chanting of which Mgr. Salolii resumed his place upon the throne, and during the remainder of its celebration did not leave that station.

The music of the mass was sung without organ accompanient, by the Palestina Society, of forty voices, under the leadership of Father Samuel, of St. Joseph's, The music was of the grave, polyphonal style of the early ages of church music, and its effect was solemin and impressive.

The gradual, offertory and communion were sung by the chancel choir, of surpliced boys, under the direction of Frof. Ungerer.

These ceremonies, with the responses and reading of the Gospel and epistic, lasted nearly three-quarters of an hour, when the first part of the services came to an end, and Archieshop Corrigan descended from his throne and, with an escort of several priests, advanced to the pulpi at the edge of the chancel rail.

As he mounted to the top of the little spiral staticway leading to the platform, with its overhanging sounding-hoard, he removed his beretta, and drew from beneath his robe a small roil of an anogenity.

BALLOON BECOMES UNRULY.

Ropes Give Way and Nearly Cause a Premature Ascension. Prof. Carton, the aeronaut, who came this afternoon, intending to show some of his friends what New York looked like, from the clouds, was unable to do so owing to a serious accident. The balloon, which had been inflated at Port forris, was brought down by the tug Vosburg and a lighter and at about 3 o'clock all were in the vicinity of the East River Bridge.

The professor and a photographer had got into the basket of the baloon while the aeronaut's wife and several other persons were in the lighter to which the neck of the balloon was attached by ropes. Some of the ropes gave way and those on the lighter held on to the baloon like grim death to prevent a premature ascension. As the baloon swayed from side to side the gas escaped with a rush, and finally it was decided to abandon the ascension for the time being.

While the balloon was being towed down the river to one of the piers, to Vosburg and a lighter and at about $

While the balloon was being towed down the river to one of the piers, to which it was finally fastened, a great crowd ran to the river front to watch it. Fully three thousand gathered at the dock where the balloon was made fast, and each one gave a hand in getting rid of the gas. The swaying of the balloon, which contained 27,000 feet of gas, caused considerable excitement, and a few persons were slightly injured. Charged with Stealing Flour.
